

DOLL CITY

Delicate brush handwork modifies eyebrows of doll named "Shoki".

Iwatsuki City is a small town but they are big in dolls. The town produces 50 to 60 percent of all the dolls made in Japan. About 10 percent of the 40,000 population are engaged in the industry. The doll manufacturing business started in the area in the early 17th century and has continued from generation to generation.

Most of the dolls made today are of the dancing figures based on the classical Kabuki characters. A very popular doll for displaying in the homes during the time of the Festival for Boys is one named "Shoki", a great Samurai God, who, according to the legends, beats devils. Although living in a modern age of automation now, the precise work on the dolls still depends on hands and fingers. This meticulous handwork prevents greater volume of exports and sales but the doll makers say the doll parts made by machines are inferior in quality and do not satisfy them.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

YOUTH ASKED FOR IT!

This column is for young people who have problems and pressures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to Helen Help US!, this newspaper.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT!

Dear Helen: My problem is going to sound stupid. It even seems stupid to me when I think about it, but it still bothers.

I am 17, and very short. My boy friend is almost six feet five inches tall. We look like Mini-girl and Godzilla-boy together. I face this, as I love him. But every time we kiss goodnight, I get the stiffest neck imaginable.

I can't wear high heels all the time, and besides, they don't make up the difference. My mother says if it bothers me, break up, but I'm lost without my Jolly Green Giant.

Here are some of the other suggestions I've received:

1. Wear elevator shoes. (My friends.)
2. Have him cut off his legs from the knee down. (My younger brother.)
3. Have him stand on the bottom steps and me on the top steps—but we don't always have steps. (My older brother.)

I'm quite sure my boy friend is as tired of bending over as I am bending back, but his neck doesn't hurt. Have you a better suggestion?—MINI-GIRL

Dear Mini: Godzilla-boy might lift you up by the elbows if a top step isn't handy.

(Well then, would you believe collapsible stilts in your purse?)—H.

Dear Helen: My best girl friend's boy friend is being drafted. After he leaves, I am quite sure she will try to steal my new boy friend. What makes me so sure is that her present fella was once mine until she grabbed him. She has messed up a few other romances of mine before. How can I stop her?—ANTICIPATING A RAID

Dear AAR: Learn to fight for what's yours. It's a cinch you never have, or you wouldn't be calling this romance-wrecker your "best friend." Aim her at another boy and ease her out of your life.

... And know your own worth! When a girl is sure she can't hold a boy friend—she won't.—H.

Dear Helen: I'm writing in the hopes that someone who may be crying now will wipe away the tears.

I lost a wonderful fellow to another girl. It hurt, gosh, how it hurt, and still does, and not just my pride, but my heart.

But the point is, there's too many fish in the sea to cry over one. You get nothing but swollen eyes. So I smiled and was a good sport. I keep saying, "My day will come," and what's more, I look for it.

A good method to help you forget is to write your feelings down and put the paper where you won't find it often. Then get busy with a new hobby. Redo your room. Look for new friends. Don't let your mind dwell on the past.

You'll never forget him, entirely, but you'll find someone else. Get back into circulation and see how soon you'll be noticing a cute boy in the crowd. —A LOSER WHO SMILES

Dear Helen: When I was 16, a boy pretended he liked me just to get his old girl friend back. It hurt so bad that I decided from then on I'd never let myself care for a boy. I'd just play games. If anyone was hurt, it would be the boy!

This worked until I met a shy fellow who has been walking me to classes everyday. He asked me out last night. I played it cool, as usual. I acted silly and "clever." Good ol' anything-for-a-laugh Betsy. The habit of protecting myself was too deep to shut off.

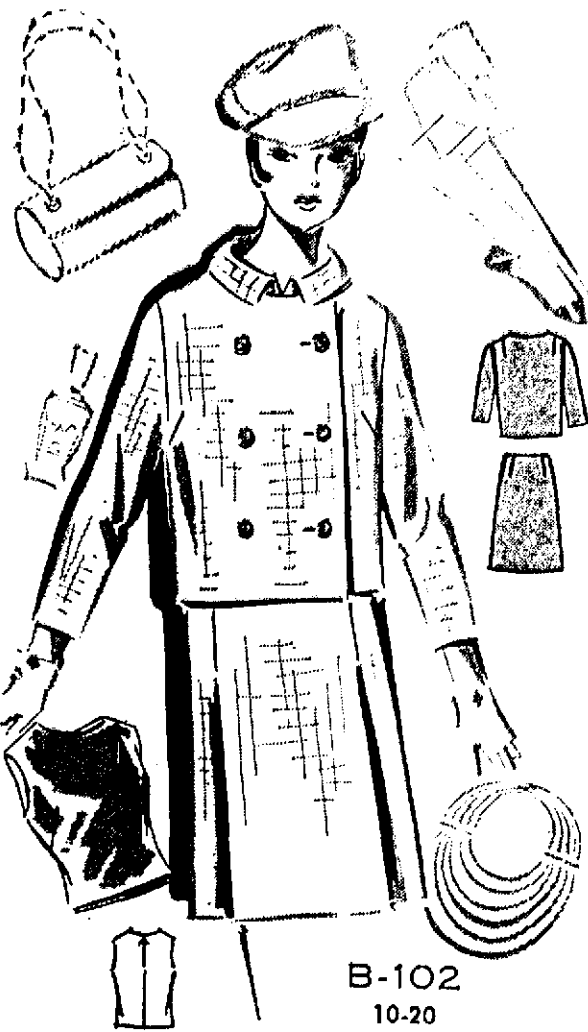

I could see he was perplexed. But he still asked me what I was doing the next Friday night. Stupidly I said, "Nothing but sleep," as if I thought the whole evening had been a big bore.

Helen, I really like him. Have I got a chance to become the girl I am?—BFTSY

Dear Betsy: Of course you have. Why not write a little note telling him how much you enjoyed the evening. Make it as sincere as you are going to be from here on out. He'll be ringing your bell next Friday. You'll see!—H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences.

Bob Thomas at the Movies

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is more to the cancellation of a television series than an anemic rating. Economics can also play a crucial factor, as in the case of "Green Hornet."

The major film studios, which now produce the bulk of television series, are becoming more and more alarmed at the rising cost of putting a show on the air. Recently Darryl F. Zanuck, president of the biggest series maker, 20th Century-Fox, told me he was considering cutting down the number of shows made by the studio.

"We were making so many series we had to rent space at other studios," he explained. "When you do that, your possibility of profit becomes precarious."

Even with a hit, he added, the studio loses money on the first year's product. The second or third year could produce a profit. But some series never pay off until they go into reruns.

One of the Fox series is "Green Hornet," which can be classed as an iffy show. It has received fair ratings, but star Van Williams figures it will return next season only if the economics can be solved.

"Bill Dozier, our producer, has been trying to sell ABC and the sponsors on the idea of going to an hour show next season. It would make sense from the actors' standpoint. One of the problems with the show was that the network wanted half of it to be action. It meant dragging in action for action's sake and that was lousy. We were left with only 12 or 13 minutes of dialogue, and that wasn't enough to establish any of the characters or develop the plot."

"But most important of all a half-hour show is almost impossible to do on an economic basis. Our show is budgeted at $110,000, and I don't think we've met that mark in more than two or three of the 26 shows. I understand the loss to the company has been a million and a half dollars, some of which will be recovered on reruns."

"Converting to an hour show would mean an outlay of only $25,000 more, which would make it a much better investment. I understand Fox is trying to convert all its half-hour shows into hours."

'Franglais' and 'Les Badges' and Now 'La Protest'

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—"Mini" is definitely an unpleasant word in French. The 22 members of that august body, the French Academy, which is to letters what Dior is to fashions, have decreed it.

In fact, they have damned it.

The academicians belong to the committee which produced the review, "Defense of the French Language." In their latest edition, they growl that the French emulators of Madison Avenue publicists are creating "mini-words" for the "mini-brains" who form the majority of their public.

There is cause, it seems, for their protests. While the mini-jupe (skirt) has been slow to catch on, except with the kids in the Latin Quarter, the word itself has spawned a score of others.

Frenchmen with mini-budgets now take mini-vacances (vacations) and shop for mini-price bargains.

A pop singer, Jacques Dutronc, has made a hit record entirely on mini-words. Francoise Hardy, one of the top three mini-warblers, recently modeled a new minidresses hoping the mini-Parisienne would go for it.

But "mini" is just the last drop, the academicians claim, which caused the overflow of the brimming cup of protest against the invasion of "Franglais" in the nation's language.

The majority of Frenchmen these days understands perfectly that "un gentleman" may take "une script girl" away for the "weekend" and persuade her to watch "le football" after buying her the odd "cardigan" or "la robe sweater" or "un pull" (pull-over). Hush-puppies and sneakers no longer need to be translated.

Said "gentleman" will continue, setting his date up with "un snack," perhaps "un hot dog" in "le milk bar." He will then put his car in a "parking" and invite her to his "penthouse." Occasionally, he may require "un checkup" and "un bridge" after his yearly visit to the dentist. And British mini-cars are run by the boys and girls "with it" or dans le vent (in the wind, in French).

Publicists explain there is a good and simple reason for this state of affairs, which He was also amusing playing a even the austere President Charles de Gaulle has been known to frown upon.

To begin with, English words are easier, quicker, tangy. The spelling is often incorrect, but who's to know? If your zipper jams, you know where you are, but "un fermement eclaire" seems that much more complicated.

Turning the knife in the wound, a new television competition recently announced the award of a "badge" to winners.

The French have just awakened to the uses of "le badge." One well-known writer describes it as "a way of speaking without opening one's mouth." By pinning a badge to your lapel, on your sleeve, on your hat, anywhere you please, you can make it say practically anything. For example—"I am a genius." "It's a fine day." "I am free." "I am not free." "Don't come near me." "I am in favor of sexual equality," or any other individual profession of faith.

Gen. Baden-Powell of Boy Scout fame was the first to exploit the badge with his troops. In World War I British Tommies wore buttons representing their favorite general on the battlefields of Flanders.

What stuck most lastingly in the French mind was the "I like Ike" button which figured so prominently in the presidential campaign maneuvers of the ex-Allied commander.

Now a 26-year-old Frenchman, Didier Bernardin (his father owns the Crazy Horse Saloon, a Paris strip joint) is about to corner the badge market. Didier went to the United States on a vacation last summer and came back with an idea. He gave up his studies to be a pharmacist and went to work. Soon after, he bombarded the French market with 500,000 badges.

Kids are now collecting badges instead of keyrings and Bernardin's objective is to win over the 3 million keyring collectors in France. One badge reads: "I hate keyring collectors." Popular-price tailors are supplying a badge with every suit.

It is also whispered that several of the French political parties are contemplating the use of "le badge" ammunition in future elections.

One wonders what the members of the French Academy would say if President De Gaulle happened to be seen sporting one.

NEW YORK (AP) — It would indeed be quite a night out on any town if it included watching Peter Sellers in two very funny sketches, Sir Laurence Olivier in a song-and-dance bit from "The Entertainer," and Albert Finney in a scene from "Luth." But television viewers of Thursday night's "David Frost's Night Out in London" on ABC had even more diversion — a few acts, none really distinguishing, in London night spots and some humorous commedog in "le milk bar." He will tary between times from the host himself. Color film of the British capital by night was a treat to the eye.

Peter Sellers came off with the evening comedy honors in a hilarious sketch in which he portrayed an uncomfortable television interviewer unexpectedly confronted by a taciturn insurance salesman when he had expected a deep-sea diver. THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

TEN-SHUN!... THE MILITARY LOOK: It's here, it's kooky, and in lots of ways, it's practical for knock-around clothing. Battalions of this soldier and sailor gear are stowed away in military surplus... if you can locate a good and big one of these surplus stores in or near your town. Both guys and gals will be interested in items we've located scattered over the battlefields of several such surplus shops. The following calls the roll: Clothing: stacks of those faithful Navy pea-coats, plus gobs of turtle-necks; Marine camouflage coveralls; thermal and insulated winter longies and tee shirts (maybe convert to outerwear); real brushy field and bush jackets; choke-collar World War I doughboy tunics, also choke-collar Marine and West Point dress blouses; and every kind of shoulder patch, metal collar insignia and medal, to sport these up. Headgear to make your head woozy: ranging from London Bobby constable hats to Korean War cold weather hats, nylon mosquito head net helmets, flyer's hug-your-head leather helmets, water-melon-sized Navy gunner's headpieces, floppy Australian digger hats, Army garrison and fatigue caps, and your choice of monster-looking gas masks. Great carryall stuff: bulky Navy or trim Army duffle bags, big drawstring barracks bags (for your laundry?); assorted smaller bags and pouches—from pistol holsters and cartridge-carrying packets to compact map cases and all-purpose shoulder musettes. Also lots of those big belts—brass buckle web belts. Army garrison belts; even Army suspenders and belts with Civil War buckles. Maybe kickest item: especially to lol on the beach next summer, is a U. S. survival three-by-six-foot sheet spangled with huge, fluorescent-colored letters that spell—H-E-L-P!

LACKADAY. ANOTHER WEAR AND THROWAWAY! Hats, this time... a Manhattan Mad Mod Hatter, Adolfo, has just created a modish line of paper hats. They'll come in paper printed in Italian designs—floppy large brim, small brim, tea cosy shape and Arab turban, or in a tieable scarf hat. Designed to be wearable "for weeks," they'll be in stores in March, just in time to go with young adult-slanted spring paper dresses... But at $8 and up a hat, maybe you'll want to save to wear on New Year's Eve, too.

THE BEAT ROLLS AGAIN IN INDONESIA: Rock 'n' roll, slipping out of the strait jacket wrapped around it by President Sukarno (now in a political strait jacket himself), has started cautiously rocking the East Indian islands again. Though officially labeled "youth-corrupting," the electric guitar persisted in Javanese youth's musical underground—now has popped to the surface again... featuring tunes taped from the Australian radio. Again becoming a common sight—Islamic groups clad in tight pants and cowboy boots... sometimes playing at Moslem weddings. One more proof that your sound won't quit and keeps on rolling around the world.

NEWEST JEWELRY—TODAY'S SKIN JEWELS: To put the finishing touches on begarb and begaud in today's column, YOUTH BEAT rushes to report on still another Throwaway—wear-and-throwaway jewelry... Honest, guys, you can buy that zok person a whole packet of these so-called "jewels" that really scintillate... for about three bucks. And what will your gal do with them?—Paste them on herself, of course. They're novelties in this kind of geegaw—spots of aluminum-coated plastic a quarter to seven-eighths of an inch in size, square, triangle, circle or any crazy shape. They're engraved in a surface pattern that really does sparkle in changing rainbow colors. They'll soon be on the market, manufactured by three girls in their 20s, who operate out of a secret workshop, the Lone Puffin (360 W. 19th St., New York). Now, how does your gal get stuck up with these new jewels?—They have a self-adhesive back, so to bedeck her forehead, cheek, ear, chin (even hair), and naturally her evening dress back... just slap 'em on her bare skin.

Lamb Cubes Take Curry Seasoning

Rice ring forms a wreath around a curry-seasoned lamb stew, dressed with lemon juice and chopped ripe olives.

Does your family always know what they're going to have for dinner? Or is the event punctuated with a surprise now and then?

Each family has its own favorites, which they should expect to be served, but variety and surprise are ingredients which every homemaker can use to advantage.

Curry-seasoned lamb stew might be just the entree to delight the family. True, it's made with boneless cubes of lamb, just like regular stew, says Roba Staggs, meat expert, but the curry, olives and rice make it thoroughly different.

On another occasion, use the variation of chili powder to replace the curry.

Oriental Lamb Stew
2 pounds boneless lamb for stew, cut in 1 1/2-inch cubes

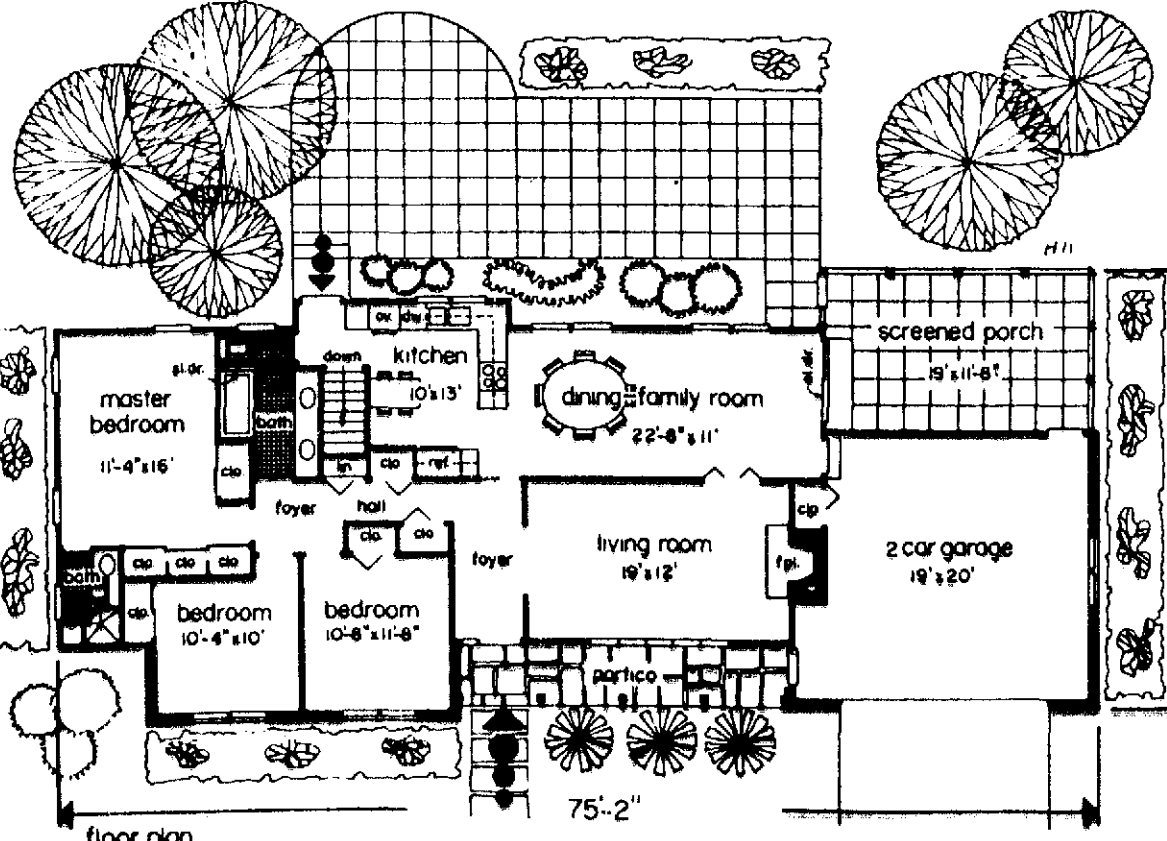

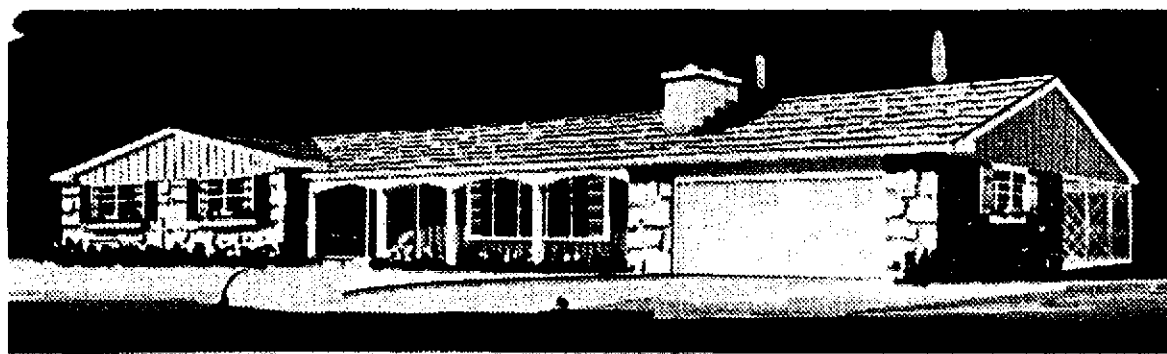

2 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon curry or chili powder
1 can (1 pound 13 ounces) tomatoes
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup water
1/4 teaspoon lemon juice
8 ripe or green olives, chopped
Salt
3 cups cooked rice
Brown lamb in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add salt, onion, curry or chili powder and tomatoes. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 1/2 hours or until meat is done. Thicken stew with flour mixed with 1/2 cup water. Just before serving, add lemon juice and chopped olives and salt to taste. Serve on hot rice 6 to 8 servings.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

RANCH HOME of 1,474 square feet "lives larger." Open planning and precise zoning are combined to produce the effect of spaciousness. The foyer acts as reception hall and also visually increases the living room — with its fireplace and bow-style window. A short hall with guest closet, family closet and linen closet leads to another foyer which serves as circulation between the three bedrooms and large main bathroom. The bathroom also can be entered from the rear — handy to the basement, outside and kitchen. The dining and family rooms are arranged so that an enormous banquet table could be set up there. Church Attendance

BUILDS CHARACTER

What's The Weather?

If A
Man
Prays

Can
He Live Wrong?

This is a New Year and only God knows how much of good or bad will blow our way. The weather vane knows no difference between the points of the compass. Her job is to look straight ahead into whatever winds that blow... and the more severe the wind pressure the greater her accuracy. That's our lesson. God also tries us by pushing strong winds into our face, by laying blocks in our path and by shoving temptations before us. Then let us face up to His test. This way He finds out those who love Him; those who seek Heaven; and those who support His Church. Like the weather bird... resign your will to God.

You In The Church
The Church In You
— form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

SPONSORS BELOW SHARE THE INVITATION AND COST OF THIS PAGE. THEY URGE YOU AND YOUR FAMILY TO ATTEND CHURCH.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Good Score Not Enough

By Oswald & James Jacoby Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With today's hand we take leave of the 1966 American team trials, concluding with the silliest hand of the event.

At four of the five tables South opened with a preemptive bid of three hearts. West could not find a bid and East would have liked to double but there was no hope that his partner would leave the double in.

There was little to the play. West would open the jack of clubs. East would win and cash his ace of trumps. Eventually the defense would wind up with three clubs, one spade, one diamond and four trumps. South would be down five for minus 250 but he would be happy about the whole thing.

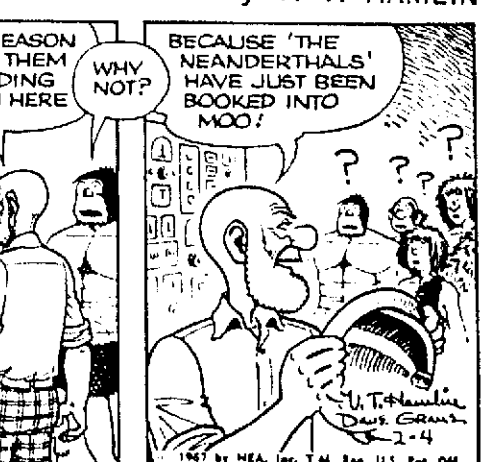

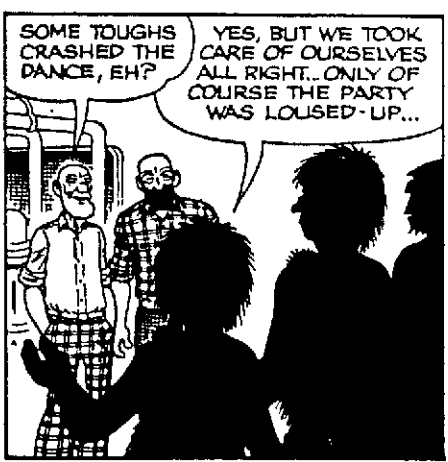

East and West can make game in no-trump, spades or clubs. They can actually make six clubs by playing exactly one round of trumps but that sort of play is likely only if you are playing with all hands exposed.

As we said, North and South were happy until the results came in. At the one table where South failed to preempt North opened with three diamonds.

This three diamond opening was East's cup of tea. He had a fine take-out double and proceeded to make it.

West liked his hand and made a forcing bid of four diamonds. East bid four hearts and West went to five clubs. East really should have passed but he felt sure that his partner held four spades. Otherwise West would just have bid five clubs directly over the double. So East went to five spades.

Five spades was a reasonable contract but there was no way that East could handle North's four spades and he had to go down one trick.

Thus we had four North-South pairs at minus 250 and one at plus 100 so that minus 250 was a two IMP loss instead of a gain.

Bobcats Take Camden In 87-51 Win

BY LARRY DON WRIGHT

Hope Star Sports Editor

Taking an early lead the Bobcats coasted most of the way en route to a 87-51 triumph over the Camden Panthers in Region 4AA action at Jones Field House last night.

It was the Bobcat's fast break which gave them 10 consecutive points in the first quarter before the Panthers could get on the board. But it didn't stop there as the Cats successfully executed the fast break strategy throughout the game.

The win which marked the first round of the Region 4AA double round robin boosted the Bobcats 4AA mark to 5 wins and 3 losses. At the same time it sent the Panthers record to a discouraging 0-8 for the first round of conference play.

Tonight the Cats will meet somewhat rougher opposition in the likes of the 4AA leaders, the Fairview Cardinals. The Cards have only one loss on their record so far. It was a 51-50 loss to the Bobcats at Hope on the first night of district play four weeks ago. However tonight's affair will be played on the Fairview home court.

By the end of the first quarter Hope controlled a command of 24-5. The pace slowed somewhat through the second period as the Cats emerged the half-time leader with a 41-24 advantage.

The third quarter saw the Bobcats return to full swing by rolling up a quarter total of 30 points which left them in the lead 71-40. Although the second team played as much the second half as the starters did the lead never swayed or faded.

The final chapter was equally as exciting as the Cats finished up with not only an impressive performance but a 87-51 win. It was hard to tell just where the real trouble lies in Camden's performance since the only evident errors were poor shooting and floor mistakes. However in general the Panthers were handicapped by their inability to function as a team.

The Bobcats did not try to run the score up on the Panthers as is sometimes the practice on the winning teams who find themselves out front by a large margin. It was an opportune time for Bobcat Coach Joe Austin to allow all of his reserves to play in actual game situations.

Of course this took on a double purpose. Not only did it give the reserves a chance to see some action, it also gave the starters rest before tonight's big game against Fairview.

The Bobcats had five players the starters, in double figures for scoring. Stan Parris was high for the game with a total of 29 points. Bobby Cooper sacked 16 points for Camden.

Other Bobcats in double digits were Danny Griffiths with 10, Larry East 11, Stan Reyenga 12, and Luther Shaw 10. Mike Franks scored 6, Mike Westbrook 5, and Wayne Norvel 4.

In the junior high game the positions changed with the teams as the Camden juniors found themselves on the long end of a one-sided clouting of the Kittens 54-39.

Ronnie Brown scored 11, Phil Watkins 6, Thomas Norvel and David Still 4 apiece, John Spragins, Randy Steele, and Tommy Adams had 2 each.

The games tonight at Fairview (Camden) will begin with the junior game at 6:30 and the senior showdown to follow immediately.

Adolph Topperwein — perhaps the best shot of all time — was officially recognized recently as one of the truly great performers in the history of American sports.

During a luncheon in Dallas, Tex., Mr. Topperwein was toasted into the Texas Sports Hall of Fame. A second toast honored him as the first shooter ever to be elected to such a position.

If there was a single regret during the festivities in Dallas was that Ad could not be there. He died five years ago in his home in San Antonio, Tex.

But his story bears repeating because he was equally as great in his sport as Sammy Baugh or Jack Dempsey or Babe Ruth were in theirs.

He fell in love with shooting at the age of eight, when he was presented with a .22 caliber rifle by his father. Within a year, he was humbling most grownups with his phenomenal accuracy.

After working in a San Antonio crockery shop, Ad went to work as a cartoonist for the San Antonio Express. Shortly before he was 20, Ad won top honors in a local talent show and George Walker, the show manager, was so impressed he financed a trip to New York City for Topperwein in the hope that the big time vaudeville barons would be interested.

But vaudeville remained closed to Ad until he created a stir by putting every shooting gallery in Coney Island out of business. Then vaudeville opened wide, and soon he was traveling to every major city on the circuit.

In 1901, the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. of New Haven, Conn., offered Topperwein a job as an exhibition shooter and a year later he met his match.

It was in the pleasant form of an 18-year-old redhead named Elizabeth Servaty—a nonshooter. They were married and within a month Elizabeth was shooting the eyes out of tin cans and pieces of chalk from the fingers of her husband. She became known as "Plinky" because she would load her rifle and say to Ad: "Throw up a tin can and I'll plink it."

Ad and Plinky Topperwein became the world's most famous shooting team—with Plinky plinking everything in sight and Ad combining his shooting abilities with his cartooning by etching figures on tin sheets with a .22 rifle.

Ernie Pyle, who considered it an honor to call the Topperweins his friends, told how, in 1907:

"Ad shot steadily for eight hours a day, for 10 days in a row. He was firing a .22 rifle at 2½-inch wooden blocks tossed in the air. He shot at 72,500 blocks, and missed only nine.

"Out of the first 50,000, he missed only four. He had a number of runs of more than 10,000 without a miss, and one run of 14,540. But the strain of it, day after day, almost drove him insane," Pyle related.

"His muscles and nerves were in painful knots. At night he had horrible dreams that the blocks would be a mile away and the bullets wouldn't come out of the end of the gun.

"As for Plinky, her trap-shooting record of 1,952 hits out of 2,000 targets was a world's record for anyone—man or woman. She shot for five hours, using a Winchester pump gun."

The Topperweins continued to travel the world until 1940, when they retired. Many of their records still stand.

OUT OF REACH

Beaten Foes Also Lean to Cassius

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOUSTON—(NEA)—Cleveland Williams had the knockout punch. George Chuvalo the stamina. Karl Mildenberger the confusing southpaw style.

None of their specialties worked against Cassius Clay. Now it is Ernie Terrell's chance. Ernie is supposed to dethrone the heavyweight champion because he is taller—6-6 compared to Clay's 6-2—and because he has the longer reach (82 inches compared to Clay's 79).

What type of fight will it be? Doug Jones and George Chuvalo are best qualified to answer that.

Both have lost decisions to Clay and Terrell. Jones came closer than anyone to beating Clay early in Cassius' career (1963). Chuvalo lost a 15-round decision to the champion in 1965.

Terrell defeated Jones in a 15-round World Boxing Association championship last June. Six months earlier, he defeated Chuvalo in a WBA 15-rounder. Both were close fights.

"Clay hasn't fought many fighters like Terrell," said Chuvalo. "Clay will have to reverse his tactics and be more aggressive."

"Usually, Clay makes most of his opponents miss with their punches and then he counters. He won't be able to do that as easily against Terrell."

"Billy Daniels, who is built like Terrell, gave Clay some trouble a few years back. But Clay finally got to him and beat him. He was tall and rangy with an awkward style like Terrell's.

"Clay is stronger than Terrell and I think this could make the difference. Lack of stamina might be Terrell's downfall. Clay has been fighting all year—the rest he took after the Williams fight won't hurt him at all."

"Terrell is a one-track fighter. At least he was against me. He just threw the left all night. I thought I had him beat. If Clay doesn't take the initiative, Terrell will have a chance."

"But I think if Clay stops him it will be in the later rounds."

Jones doesn't see the title fight quite the same as Chuvalo.

"What does Chuvalo mean by aggressive? How can Clay be aggressive when Terrell is nothing but a holder? What's he going to do? Take a .38 out of his trunk and make him stop holding?"

"There's really no comparison to make in the fight. Sure, Terrell has a chance. You always have a chance to get in a punch. But I don't pick Terrell because of the type fighter he is. All he did in my fight was hold."

From Jones' viewpoint, it sounds as if the referee will be the busiest man in the Astrodome ring.

Judging from Terrell's past fights, that would not be surprising.

I'm Not a Flake

SAN FRANCISCO—(NEA)—Rick Barry would have been a natural for New York. He's colorful and provocative. He has genuine basketball ability. And he happens to come from Roselle Park, N.J., just across the Hudson River.

But Ned Irish, the big boss of the New York Knickerbockers, said he didn't want him. And the San Francisco Warriors, by finishing last in the National Basketball Association in the spring of 1965, drafted him first to negate a possible change of mind.

Besides which, Rick Barry adds, "I wouldn't have wanted to play for New York. I didn't like what Ned Irish said about me. He called me skinny and flakey, and the man didn't know me. I resented it."

And just why would anybody call the Miami (Fla.) graduate "flakey"?

"I think it was in my sophomore year," Rick traces the reputation. "When we were playing Providence in the Garden (Madison Square). They led by 19; then we shaved it down to four and were coming on. If we scored one more time, I'm convinced we could have caught them. Two of our men pinched Ray Flynn, who had the ball, and it bounced free. I scooped it up, but just then the referee, who was behind the play, blew his whistle and called a foul on me. It was my fifth foul.

"I'm a fierce competitor. I threw the ball and hit the backboard. He called a technical. They already had 1-and-1 on the foul. I'm out of the game, and pretty soon instead of us being two points down, they're nine ahead."

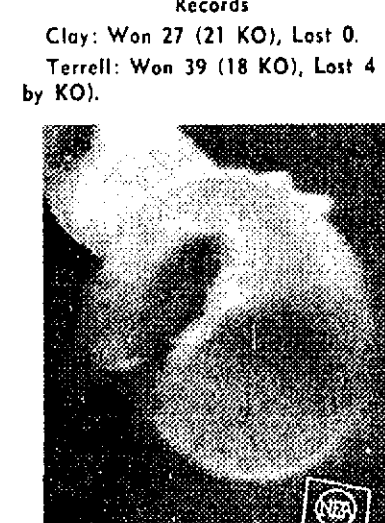

Ergo, a critical Mr. Irish, who watches all in the Garden.

"I had a bad temper," admits Rick. "really bad. I'm

DOUBLE DUTY. Rick Barry admits he has to improve his defensive game to bring it up to par with his offensive potential. "It's a matter of personal pride and extra hustle."

Between You'n' Me
BY MURRAY OLDERMAN
SPORTS EDITOR
NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION

HOUSTON, Tex.—(NEA)—I would like to think that Ernie Terrell, the World Boxing Association champion, is going to expand his domain and annex the domain of Cassius Clay, alias Muhammad Ali, when they substitute fists for words the night of Feb. 6.

A piece of evidence has come along that could help me delude myself. It is a three-minute film clip made three years ago, when Terrell was a journeyman heavyweight trying to get along by fighting famous men like Gerhard Zech and Jeff Davis, and Clay was an unwashed Black Muslim pretender to the throne of Sonny Liston.

The two got together in a ring in Miami Beach, Fla., where Clay was in training—ostensibly for two rounds of sparring. Angelo Dundee, Clay's trainer, called off the session after the first round for two reasons: Clay was getting pushed around, and Cassius had nothing to gain against someone with Ernie's style.

Jimmy Jacobs, the world's greatest collector of fight films (the count is up over 5,000 now) when he's not the world's four-wall handball champion, secured the film from a Florida cameraman and it will be displayed to help the build-up for the forthcoming championship match.

"It is valuable," notes Jimmy, "for one reason. The thing that shocks everyone is that Terrell takes complete command of the entire round."

True. The film as run for me by Jimmy in the offices of Big Fights, Inc., in New York, shows Ernie, known as a cautious clutch, taking the fight to Clay, outjabbing and outpunching him, even throwing some right hands and forcing Clay to be on the defensive most of the time. This doesn't conform to the image of Terrell as a conservative who fights out of a shell and spends all his time trying to tie up his opponent.

"The amazing part," says Jimmy, "is his attitude of complete disdain for Clay. He's not at all afraid of him."

Of course, any evaluation from the films must be mitigated by the fact that Clay in the interim has become the heavyweight champion of the world, a picture of confidence, a bigger man physically and surely a better fighter.

Jimmy agrees, but looks for a good fight.

"Essentially," he says, "both are counter punchers. The men Terrell has fought and clinched with incessantly are fighters like George Chuvalo and Doug Jones, who moved straight in on him. Clay is a circler. Because Ernie has this disdain, this lack of fear—no matter what the boxing experts are saying—I look for Terrell to move right in on him. As a result of it, I look for Clay to knock him out."

Just what I was going to say. Within 10 rounds, if you please.

Just as Cleveland Williams was supposed to have the punch to test Clay, Terrell is supposed to have the physical superiority to annoy the champion. Ernie is four inches taller, with a very professional left jab. And the courage of having been in the ring with Clay and having done well should reinforce his psyche. In all the history of heavyweight championship fights, only two other men have actually worn gloves against each other before meeting for the title. That instance was Joe Louis vs. Max Schmeling, who knocked out the Brown Bomber two years before they got in the ring for the title.

Clay, however, has expanded his firepower since Ernie saw him glove-to-glove (just as Louis became a better fighter for his experience with Schmeling and kayoed the German in one round in their return). He throws three punches for every one Terrell can muster. He has agility to maneuver around, under and inside Terrell's jabs. There are even symptoms that when he sets himself, Clay has a killer punch.

In previewing any Clay fight, you have to divorce judgment from emotion. Because he's a blatant draft dodger and, to my way of thinking, a dangerous extremist, Clay is undoubtedly the most unpopular champion in history. Absolute impartiality is impossible where two contestants are involved in a sports event, and you're asked to express opinion. People want to see Clay the person lose, 99-1.

But Clay the fighter can be a work of art in action and evoke admiration. Ernie Terrell plays a nice guitar, but he's not in the same class with the champion as a ringmaster. So we'll have to live a little longer with Cassius, or Muhammad.

Wonder if Jimmy Jacobs has any old film clips of Rocky Marciano sparring with Clay . . .

with myself."

By controlling himself, Rick has become a spectacular star for the Warriors. He took a tip from coach Bill Sharman about aiming for the back of the rim instead of the front of the rim and so far has hiked his 25-points-per-game average as a rookie more than 10 points this season.

"You get a little bit tired in the second half," theorizes Sharman. "You're not as strong, so your shots come up short. By aiming for the back of the rim, you add eight or nine inches margin of error. If you're short of the target, the ball can still get in."

Rick also showed himself something in the recent NBA All-Star game, when he was voted the most valuable player.

"I missed two free throws in a row," he recounts. "I don't do that very often. I remember after the first one, I clapped my hands to express my disgust. But after I missed the second, I just went down the court and picked up my man. Before, I might have gotten so angry I'd forget all about him, and that would cost us two points."

Earlier this season, I was getting a reputation as a cry baby. I felt I was really getting clubbed. Now this can hurt you, to cry about it, because psychologically you're not helping yourself with the officials. So I just determined I wasn't going to say anything to them any more."

Before he turned pro, Rick had been forewarned by his father-in-law, Bruce Hale, also his college coach, that he was going to be pushed around and shoved and battered around to see if he could stand the gaff. Barry has taken the beating without slowing up. He's a realist.

"When I came to the pros, I really had to work hard on defense," says Rick. "It's just a matter of personal pride and extra hustle because it takes a lot out of you to play tough defense and to be fast breaking and playing real hard on the offensive end of the court. It's just something I have to make up my mind to do."

If, after two years of uninterrupted success, Rick retains any peevish about pro ball, it's in his name. Last year his fellow Warriors called him Super-Rock. This year they've amended it to Super-Soph.

"I'd like to lose it," he says, "and get some other kind of nickname because I don't know about the super part of it. I don't really consider myself a super-ball player."

He just wants to be paid like one.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—In how many categories are Nobel Prizes awarded?

A—Five—Physics, Chemistry, Physiology and Medicine, Literature and Peace.

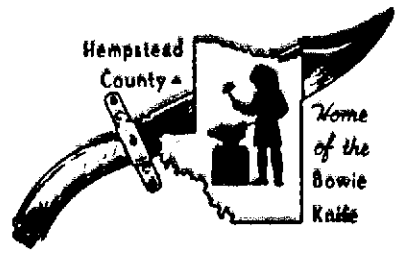

Q—How long did it take George Frederick Handel to compose his greatest oratorio, the "Messiah"?

A—He composed his crowning masterpiece in 23 days by working without interruption.

Q—How does the wing of a bird sustain flight?

A—It acts somewhat like an oar and a carrier at the same time. The wing pushes back the air with its wide surface, then glides forward with the least possible resistance.

Next Friday Marks 49th Anniversary of Hope Rotary Club

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Next Friday, February 10 the Hope Rotary Club will be 49 years of age. It was on February 10, 1918, that the local club was organized at the Hotel Barlow, and Jess N. Riley was the first president. Lee Giles, who had moved here from Hot Springs, was greatly instrumental in the club's organization and he became its first secretary. It was probably through his influence that the Hot Springs club sponsored the new Hope group. There were 43 members on the club roster that first year.

Since the founding of the first Rotary Club anywhere was on February 23, 1905, in Chicago, it was appropriate that the first luncheon meeting of the Hope Rotary Club was on February 23, 1918. Today, the club's only charter member is Ed McCorkle. Announcing the milestone, Paul Kilpsch, President of the local Rotary Club, said, "The Rotary Club of Hope is linked with more than 12,600 other Rotary clubs in 134 nations around the world. Rotary meetings marking this anniversary will be held in many languages, including Arabic, Danish, Finnish, French, Spanish, Portuguese, Japanese, and Persian."

The Hope Rotary Club, by a strange coincidence, has exactly 43 members today, the number in the first local organization of Rotary. The members are all business and professional men, representing a cross-section of the community's vocations.

The President of Rotary International if from the U. S., this year. He is Richard L. Evans of Salt Lake City, Utah, a radio broadcaster. Since 1930, he has narrated, written and produced "Music and the Spoken Word," over a nation-wide network. All who have heard it have been moved by the melodious Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the five minutes of inspiration Mr. Evans gives with the Spoken Word.

Mr. Evans, like the Rotary International Presidents before him, encourages all the clubs under his jurisdiction to carry out their service programs through individual and unaffiliated action. A major activity of the Rotary Club of this community is sponsoring the Society for Academic Achievement at Hope High School. This is the high school counterpart of Phi Beta Kappa and carries with it the same high standards.

Last summer the Hope Rotary Club instituted a new community service that has touched the lives of a great many people outside our city as well as those here. Tourist Information Booths on Highway 67, east and west of the city limits, have been of great help in spreading the good news of what our area has to offer visitors.

When President Richard L. Evans assumed his duties as Rotary International President last July 1, he outlined a 10-point program for Rotary clubs everywhere. It includes extending Rotary to new communities, guiding youth, developing friendships across national borders, and "doing something for someone, somewhere." The Hope Rotary Club has tried to carry out his program.

Bill Changes Jobless Pay Requirements

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Public Welfare Committee of the Arkansas House gave a "do pass" recommendation today to a bill which would change the eligibility requirements to receive unemployment compensation.

A worker who left his job without good cause could not qualify for unemployment benefits until he has had at least eight weeks of paid work under the bill by Rep. Gayle Windsor of Little Rock. Under the present law, he can qualify after 30 days of paid work.

Rep. John Bethell of Des Arc said on the House floor that the committee gave the bill the favorable recommendation in order to bring it up for consideration. He said he and the other committee members thought some other committee should have handled the measure because the bill was not germane to the Public Welfare Committee, but they felt were obligated to report the bill out after hearing arguments on it.

Personal LBJ Message Goes to Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — A personal message from President Johnson to Soviet leaders has been delivered through Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, it was learned today.

The message is believed to contain an appeal for U.S.-Soviet agreement to forestall a costly extension of the arms race involved in developing anti-missile missile systems.

Informants said Llewellyn E. Thompson brought the message with him when he arrived here Jan. 11 to begin his second tour as U.S. ambassador here.

He had intended to wait for a private meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin to hand it over. Thompson spoke informally with Kosygin last Friday after signing a treaty on the peaceful uses of outer space. Informants said he raised the question of delivering the message then and Kosygin suggested delivering it through Gromyko.

The informants said the message had been delivered through Gromyko but that there had been no response. Kosygin leaves Monday on an official visit to Britain.

Plan Offers $500 Raise for Teachers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas House Education Committee came up with a compromise pay increase bill today which would give teachers a "flat $500" raise the first year, followed by a second-year raise based on a state Education Department distribution formula.

A subcommittee of the Education Committee reached the compromise in an attempt to satisfy two factions—one wanting two $500 raises for every teacher, and one wanting distribution of the money according to the formula.

Rep. Jim Stevens of Pine Bluff said Harvey Snell, budget director for the state Board of Education, told him that the bill proposed by the Education Committee was workable.

At the committee meeting, there was discussion on whether in the second year the bill provided a minimum raise of $250 per teacher and a maximum of $750, but this feature was left out of the bill "because the money may not be there for the second year," according to one committee member.

Rep. John Bethell of Des Arc was against the bill, saying he wanted the distribution for both years to be on the basis of $500 per teacher. If there was not sufficient money in the second year, he said, the funds available could be divided pro rata among the teachers.

"Two $500 raises to the teachers are a campaign promise for the next two years," said Rep. Roscoe Brown of Jonesboro. "Mr. (Gov. Winthrop) Rockefeller made that promise, now let him get the money because it is down there. At the end of the two years they can go on the formula."

Rockefeller said he vetoed a bill giving each teacher a bonus of about $170 this year because he needed the $2.79 million this would take to fulfill his promised $500 raises.

College Drops Loyalty Oath

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — Southwest Texas State College, the alma mater of President Johnson, has dropped its requirement that students sign a loyalty oath.

President James H. McCorklin said the decision was based on an opinion issued by Texas Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin. McCorklin said the loyalty oath still could be required of employees of the school.

Rockefeller Fires Four At Tucker

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pink Booher, who was fired Friday as assistant prison superintendent along with his three wardens, said he didn't know of any reason for his "sudden termination" and that no reason had been given him.

Booher said he learned of his dismissal by a lettered signed by Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller which was delivered to him about 2 p.m. Friday.

Fired with Booher were wardens J. L. Mashburn, Bob Hensley and H. H. Chadick.

Rockefeller refused immediate comment but the governor's office said the reasons would be made known soon.

Booher said the letter said: "I hereby notify you that your duties are terminated effective upon delivery of this letter to you or no later than 2 p.m. Feb. 3, 1967. Your formal employment will end Feb. 13."

Rockefeller said State Police and Prison Supt. O. E. Bishop, acting under his orders, had assumed full control of the much publicized Tucker Prison Farm, which Booher had charge of.

The letter stated, according to Booher, "It is my judgment that it would be unwise for you or your family to remain at the farm overnight."

Prison sources said that none of the authorities at Tucker knew about the dismissals until the State Police showed up to take over securities duties.

Booher, 54, a long-time deputy sheriff in Jefferson County and serving as sheriff by appointment at the time he was named to the assistant superintendent post early last month, was the third person to hold the job during the past six months.

Change Would Eliminate Toy Radio Clutter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is considering plans to shift millions of toy walkie-talkies from their present frequency space to a segment of frequencies, officials said today.

The step is viewed by some as tantamount to eliminating the toy radios that clutter the airwaves after each Christmastime and interfere with licensed radio stations and nearly television receivers.

The small walkie-talkies, which sell for anywhere from $5 to $100 are imported by the millions each year from Japan. Because these radios are limited to power of less than 100 milliwatts — with an effective range of about a mile — they do not require licenses.

The toy radios are used on the citizens radio service frequencies, about 27 megacycles. FCC officials have said citizens frequencies already are crowded, and the annual flood of toy radios aggravates the problem. Under the current proposal — still in the talking stage — the FCC would outlaw such radios in the citizens band and shift operation of the toy units to somewhere around 49 megacycles.

The section of the 49-megacycle band being mentioned is allocated to the government. Until recently it was used by the Air Force for so-called ionospheric scatter communications.

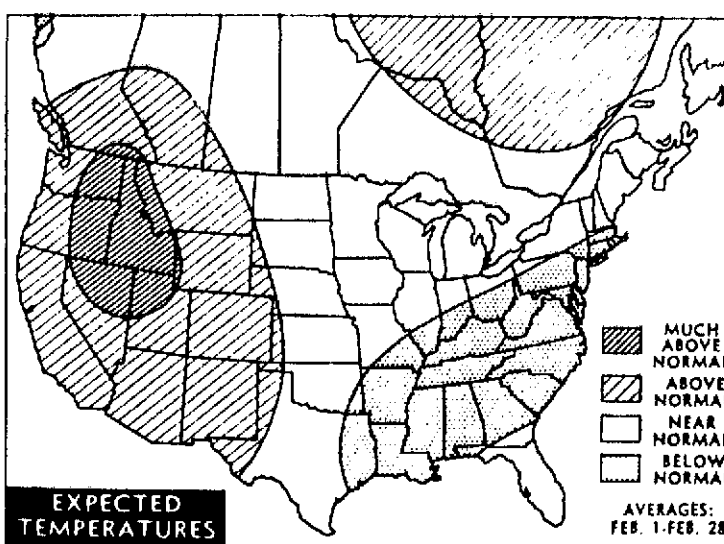

In scatter communication, high-power transmitters send out radio transmissions which, on certain frequencies, will bounce off the ionosphere — an area about 200 miles above earth that reflects radio waves. These signals bounce back to earth where they are picked up on sensitive receivers.

Scatter communications are useful because they are less susceptible to interference from sunspot activity than are conventional transmissions, but officials say they probably are now used by the Air Force in the far reaches of the Pacific.

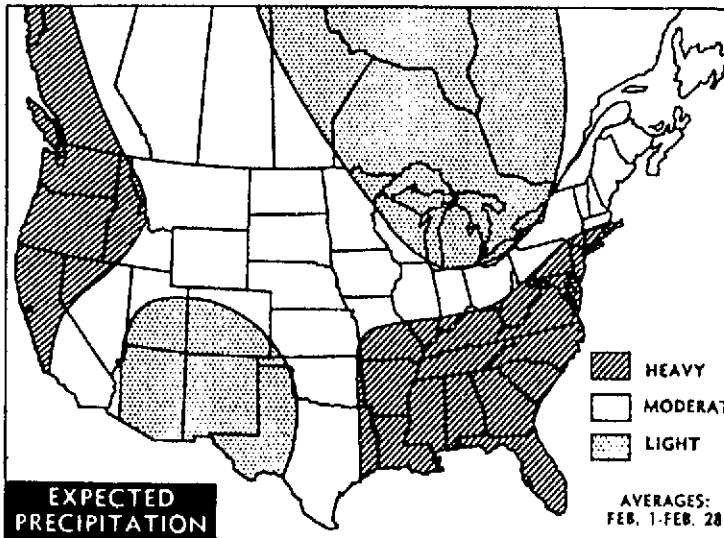

Because of the construction of the toy radios, it is likely conversion from one frequency to another would be difficult. Thus, most would have to be taken off the air if they are ordered to shift.

Frisky February

Maps show Weather Bureau's estimated forecasts of average temperature, precipitation through Feb. 28.

The temperature outlook is for an east-west split, with lower than usual readings prevailing in the East and Southeast, and above in the Pacific Coast and Mountain states.

A spotty precipitation pattern is expected to prevail, heavier than usual in the Northwest and Southeast and drier than normal for the Southwest and Upper Great Lakes.

Maine Nurses on No Strike Policy

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — A no-strike policy is in effect for members of the Maine State Nurses Association.

But in supporting the voluntary relinquishment of the right to strike, an association spokesman said, such action "imposes upon employers of nurses an increased obligation to recognize and deal justly with nurses through their authorized representatives in matters affecting employment conditions."

Society Tizzy at Capital Has It All

WASHINGTON (AP) — The capital's latest society tizzy has almost everything: the young fourth wife of a Supreme Court justice, a onetime movie star, and the question of whether the actress insulted the justice's wife at a White House dinner.

Maxine Cheshire wrote in a Washington Post article that Joan Crawford, the actress, belittled the background and table manners of the 23-year old wife of Justice William O. Douglas.

Miss Crawford replied: "I have never heard of anything so ridiculous. I have not even met Mrs. Douglas. She was at the table one seat removed from me. There was a man between us. I didn't attack her."

"Besides, who am I to criticize anybody? I was a waitress too, from the time I was nine."

Mrs. Douglas also had waited tables at one time.

Miss Crawford said she had stepped in, so to speak when Mrs. Douglas, started to put a piece of cake on her finger bowl doily.

"I said 'Excuse me' to the gentleman on my right and took the doily off the plate. She didn't seem upset, we didn't exchange one word."

Judith Axler of the New York Sunday News said Miss Crawford reached across three people in her doily correcting role and said "That's the way we do it."

Congress Ponders New Johnson Style

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is one of those quiet times in the grottoes of American politics when there isn't much light, and not much wind, either.

The inhabitants of those caves, including some dinosaurs from an earlier age, may seem to be taking a nap, but aren't really, to get ready for more frantic days of knifing, maneuvering, and fancy footwork.

Democrats and Republicans are gathering their wits while trying to digest President Johnson's heavy menu of programs, freshly cooked and, as he presents them, all essential to the national diet and with a minimum of gravy.

A very shrewd chef this year, Johnson avoided dousing the dishes with the salt of exaggerated rhetoric. His language in laying his programs before Congress, although he considers them vital, is as plain as ham and eggs.

This new Johnson, who took such an unpleasant dip in the public opinion polls last fall, is something for the members of both parties to ponder. He must have pondered it himself before he changed his style.

He has been frank, he has admitted his administration didn't have all the answers, and he has treated the Republicans like brothers although as time goes on he knows a lot of them will treat him like a third cousin.

But Johnson's very restraint, both in manner and proposals, has apparently befuddled his critics who by this time might have been expected to be shouting indignantly at what they would probably call his audacity, or sheer gall.

This gives him more time to serve up unmoistened more programs hot from the White House kitchen. To be able to keep the political babel quiet this long, particularly in Congress, proves he is still quite a political magician.

Even protests over Vietnam aren't as shrill as last year. True, Sen. J.W. Fulbright, Arkansas Democrat and unremitting critic of Johnson on Vietnam, just because it was usual, it lacked both surprise and excitement.

And the Republicans, forced to speak for themselves individually if only because this is not a presidential election year and they lack a single party spokesman, have done hardly more than mumble, so far.

Viet Cong Sabotage U.S. Dump

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Explosions and fire, believed touched off by Viet Cong saboteurs did heavy damage today to large sections of a huge U.S. Army ammunition dump near Saigon.

It was the fourth time in a little more than three months that the munitions depot at Long Binh 14 miles north of Saigon has been hit.

Fourteen hours after the first explosion at 3:25 a.m., smoke still poured from many parts of the dump. It was still too hot and dangerous for U.S. Army demolition experts to enter.

In war action, U.S. B52 heavy bombers staged four raids over South Vietnam today for a second straight day.

American jet bombers flew through intense flak Friday to pound a major rail yard and other targets north of Hanoi for the first time in more than two weeks of poor weather.

In all, U.S. pilots flew 57 bombing missions — about 200 individual strikes — against the north. Among the forays, Navy fliers from three aircraft carriers in the Tonkin Gulf reported damaging or destroying 16 cargo barges and junks on the coast and in inland waterways.

In South Vietnam, ground fighting continued on a small scale with the U.S. and South Vietnamese military commands reporting scattered, short engagements.

U.S. Marines, supported by air strikes and artillery barrages, reported killing 29 Communists in scattered fighting in the northern provinces, mostly southwest of Da Nang.

Underestimate of War Hurt the Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' chances of following sound economic policies last year were wrecked by a $10-billion underestimate by President Johnson's administration of Vietnam war costs, Sen. William Proxmire said today.

The Wisconsin Democrat insisted to Budget Director Charles L. Schultze the Defense Department was bound to know the troop buildup in Vietnam was rising rapidly to the 400,000 mark and other expenses were mounting.

"The underestimate by $10 billion had a devastating effect on our economic policies," Proxmire, chairman of the Senate-House Economic Committee, told Schultze. The budget director was a witness in hearings on Johnson's economic report.

"We failed to raise taxes as we might have done — although I did not favor this," Proxmire said. "We failed to cut spending as we might have done."

Schultze argued that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and others repeatedly told Congress the original budget figures for the year ending next June 30 did not necessarily represent the final defense costs and that supplemental appropriations would probably be needed.

Schultze said he thinks McNamara was right in deciding originally to estimate costs only through fiscal 1967 because at that stage the country was only "in the beginning phases of a rapid buildup" and the ultimate requirements could not be known.

Schultze said the situation was entirely different by the time the next year's budget was submitted last month. "The buildup is much more gradual now," he said. "With 18 months of combat experience it is possible to predict much more accurately."

Thursday members of the committee sharply rapped administration plans to abandon federal wage-price guidelines. One suggested Congress should set the standards.

The criticism came as Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, led off the hearings.
